Get quick daily updates with reminders, helpful hints, new book titles, links to useful resources, and much more.

Listen and observe before suggesting changes. While innovation is a good thing, it is important to learn the workplace dynamics first.

Mind your manners. People may not remember your politeness, but they certainly will remember rude behavior.

Continue to embrace learning. In technical fields, you will need to continuously acquire and apply new knowledge and skills. Use the reading, research, time management, and note taking skills you learned here.
